LONDON, Oct. 23.—The industrial crisis was temporarily bridged late this afternoon when the striking coal miners accepted an invitation to meet the Government for renewed discussion of the miners' demands, and the railroad men, at the request of the miners, postponed their sympathetic strike movement under which the railway employees would have ceased work at midnight Sunday.

One Report Says Mayor Is Near Death, another That His Condition Is Unchanged.

By the Associated Press.

LONDON, Oct. 23.—Grave reports were in circulation at noon today regarding the condition of Terence MacSwiney, Lord Mayor of Cork, on the seventy-second day of his hunger strike.

A statement issued by the Exchange Telegraph Co. at that hour declared the Lord Mayor's last moments were at hand.

The bulletin of the Irish Self-Determination League on the Lord Mayor's condition, however, stated that he was in about the same state as recently. He was unconscious, its information said.

"However," added the statement, "the Home Office has placed an embargo on the use of the telephone for communicating news to the outside, and has forbidden the Lord Mayor's sisters, Mary and Annie, to visit him."

The miners' representatives will meet the Government tomorrow morning.

It is generally assumed that the transport workers, who have been marking time, will not take any strike action so long as there is hope for peace.

The miners' strike is indefinite, pending the discussion with the Government.

JOHNSON INSISTS HARDING IS WHOLLY AGAINST LEAGUE

Says Senator's Utterances
Make Plain Beyond Cavil
He Would Not Take U. S.
Into It.

ASSERTS "THE 31" PAY SORRY COMPLIMENT

Doesn't Appreciate Friendship of Men Who Say Harding Intends Something Else Than He Says.

By the Associated Press.
BALTIMORE, Oct. 23.—Senator Harding is opposed unequivocally to the League of Nations and if elected will not lead the United States into it. Hiram Johnson, of California, said "irreconcilable," told a large audience at the Lyric last night.

In his address Senator Johnson referred to the recent statement issued in New York and signed by Elihu Root and others.

"Men and newspapers who pretend to be friends of Senator Harding and who assert that he is to take this country into the League of Nations do him a distinct disservice and pay him a sorry compliment.

$1 or $10,000 Gentlemen.

"I do not care if $1 gentlemen in New York or $10,000 gentlemen in Newark say the reverse of what I contend. However, the words of Warren Harding, and upon those he has, is entitled to the support of every red-blooded American."

Turning to a direct attack of the league, Senator Johnson characterized it as the "overshadowing pall of the republic," denounced it as a "military alliance" and "one made in accordance with secret treaties." Quoting copiously from the Harding speeches, he declared that the candidate has, without ambiguity, put the league behind him and has made it plain that he will not make the United States a party to the present league.

What Johnson Says.
Senator Johnson said in part:

"There is nothing ambiguous or uncertain in our candidate's declaration. He has courageously taken his stand; he has put the league behind him. He wants neither interpretations or reservations. He wants rejection.

The men and newspapers who pretend to be friends of Senator Harding and who assert that he is to take this country into the League of Nations, do him a distinct disservice and pay him a sorry compliment. I speak, of course, solely from the public utterances of our candidate, and these utterances make plain beyond a doubt when Senator Harding's candidate will not take the United States into the league."

"I am unable to understand the intellectual processes which can misinterpret or misconstrue these words, and I do not appreciate the friendship of individuals who still insist that the words are meaningless and that Senator Harding intends something else than he says."

HARDING BEGINS WORK ON FOUR LAST SPEECHES OF CAMPAIGN

By the Associated Press.
MARION, Oct. 23.—Back in his official headquarters here for his final full day of desk work a week, Senator Harding began today whipping into shape the public utterances with which he will close his campaign next week in four leading cities.

It was indicated that the nominee would phrase these speeches with great care, so as to lay his case finally before the people in a prepared form. Many subjects are expected to come in for discussion, the four deliverances fitting together in such a way as to attract public attention to all the high spots of his platform.

The first of the speeches will be delivered in Cleveland, Wednesday night, and on the remaining nights of the week he will speak successively in Akron, Cincinnati and Columbus. He has no other speeches scheduled, but before the final swing begins he may issue a public statement touching on one or two campaign issues in the light of recent developments.

UNCLE SAM OF FREEDOM RIDGE' FILM TO BE SHOWN NEXT WEEK

Picture to Be Exhibited to Give Better Understanding of League of Nations.

Arrangements have been made for a free showing of the film "Uncle Sam of Freedom Ridge," at the high school auditoriums during next week in the interest of a better understanding of the spirit of the League of Nations.

A fund has been raised by Peter Gibson and associates and two prints of the film have been obtained. The showings at the high schools will be at 8 p. m., as follows: Monday, Yeatman; Tuesday, McKinley; Wednesday, Central; Thursday, Cleveland; Friday, Solidan.

The picture can be obtained, free of charge, for showings at other places, by applying to Gibson at the Missouri Athletic Club. The purpose is nonpartisan.

Cox Favors Government Supervision and Aid in Developing Barge Line

THE Post-Dispatch has received the following statement from Gov. Cox, in response to a request for his views on waterway development and the Government's part in such development:

"I have been very deeply interested in the development of waterways transportation, not only for relief from the railway congestion from which we are now suffering, but also as a matter of genuine world-wide industrial development. We have gone through a period in which there has been neglect of our natural means of transportation without adequate development of the artificial means. There seems to have been some providential guidance in the structure of our country which gives a central internal artery such as the Mississippi River with its tributaries, while at the same time giving as our boundary on the north the great lakes and the St. Lawrence River. I have given considerable study to the possibilities, and it is my belief that failure to develop these means of transportation for our products would be nothing short of criminal governmental neglect. I wish to be understood as distinctly in favor of Government supervision and assistance in the development of the barge line operation on the Mississippi."

DYER COMPELLED TO STOP SPEAKING AT NEGRO MEETING

Demonstration Follows Congressman's Reading of Clipping Charging Alliance
With Democrats.

OPPOSING FACTIONS
SURGE INTO AISLES

Refusal of Republicans to Incorporate Negro Demands
in Platform Said to Cause Difficulty.

Shouts of a crowd of negroes opposed to the re-election of Congressman L. C. Dyer of the Twelfth (St.
Louis) District, Republican nominee, forced Dyer to stop speaking at a meeting of the Missouri Negro Republican Club in Louisiana Hall, 911 North Vandeventer avenue, last night, while a band and a negro clergymen who presided quieted the outburst. Between 1200 and 1500 negroes attended the meeting.

Negroes said that this was the third meeting within 10 days where indignation of a faction of the negroes against Congressman Dyer has been openly expressed, at meetings where Dyer has spoken. Negroes excluded white voters in the Twelfth District by about 8000 under the last registration.

Consequently Dyer precipitated the situation last night himself, when he read a newspaper clipping, which said that the negroes who are opposing Dyer's re-election and are supporting Robert N. Owens, negro Farmer-Workers nominee against Dyer, had formed an alliance with Democrats. One of the Dyer opponents yelled "Read the editorial in tonight's Argus if you want the truth," and shouts for Owens took on the nature of a demonstration, about 50 or 75 persons in the rear of the hall joining.

Negroes friendly with the city hall and to Dyer remonstrated with the negro who had yelled at Dyer and screamed into the aisles. The Dyer allies raised a cry of "put 'em out," while the others were intermingling their utterances for Owens with yells of "beat it" directed to Dyer.

Shoot for Negro Candidate.

Dyer, after vainly trying to talk down, while the band played and the preceding officer, a negro peddler, had yelled, again tried to finish his speech, but the shouts were so loud and continuous, including cries of "give us a negro," that he introduced Mayor Kiel and sat down.

Hibbard, who was a widower, is known to have been paying attentions simultaneously to a number of young girls. His niece, Mrs. G. C.
Marsten, at whose home he has been living, said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today that he had spoken of his intention of marrying again and had at different times brought different young women to her home, but each time that Mrs. Marsten suggested that this or that one would be a good choice, Hibbard would laugh and say that if he were thinking of getting married, right then there were two or three others that he had selected to the place.

Two negroes ran against him for the Republican nomination in the primary, both being defeated, and negroes charging that one of them was "counted out."

Sister Not Communicative.

Hibbard did not inform Mrs.
Marsten that he was going to be married last night. Miss Jackson was accompanied by her sister, Fern,
a telephone operator, but her sister,
Jessie, who resigned from the Tri-City telephone exchange a week ago to get married, was not communica-tive when questioned today. She said she learned of the wedding last night, but had no particulars. She knew that her sister was acquainted with Hibbard, but did not know they were engaged.

Arrangements for the marriage licenses were made by William A.
Meston, 1228 Shawmut place, secretary of the Simple Adjustment Co.
He called up License Clerk Nae at 5:15 and asked him to wait until 6:20. Hibbard and the two waiters arrived at 6:50 and Meston and his wife came at about the same time.
There was about the same time.
Mrs. Meyer had waited about 15 minutes at Clayton said he met Miss Jackson a year and a half ago and they had been keeping company ever since and there was nothing romantic about it.

The party went to the Century
Boat Club, where a surprise wedding dinner, attended by about 25 of Hibbard's friends, was waiting. Hibbard told Mrs. Marsten that he was going on a honeymoon trip today.
The ceremony was performed in "Cupid's Room," adjoining the Recorders' office by Justice Stecker.

Friend Made Arrangement.

Meston said that he had made arrangements because Hibbard had performed a like service for him a few years ago when he was married at St. Charles.

Mrs. Marsten said she knew that Hibbard had been going with a telephone girl. They stopped at the house once when out automobile riding. She was not sure, but she thought he introduced her as Miss Lee.

Hibbard's first wife died in 1908.
He has been in the lumber business here for years. His bride has been keeping house for her father and two sisters.

Hibbard is a member of the Century Boat Club, the Riviera Club and Sunset Hill Country Club. Mrs.
Marsten said he was fond of young men and had been going with a younger set.

Police reported that a piece of iron or some such similar object had apparently been thrown at the car, the missile breaking a window but not entering the car.

MRS. MABEL C. KENYON AND HER SON, FRANCIS.

The shooting of Dr. Herbert Tetlow in Norwich, Conn., on June 11 was followed by the bringing of a murder charge against Mrs. Kenyon, who acknowledged intimate relations had existed between herself and Dr. Tetlow for many years. She was found guilty of manslaughter and sentenced to prison.

Parents of Soldan Pupils Doubt Education Body's Authority Outside Classes.

Members of the Soldan High School Parents' Association, at a meeting last night, expressed doubt as to authority of the Board of Education to enforce a rule forbidding high school pupils from belonging to fraternities or sororities.

W. T. Rutherford of 1246 Amherst place, an attorney, declared that the board had no jurisdiction over the action of pupils out of school hours. He declared that meetings of fraternities and sororities were not held during school hours nor in school property. He said that the power of school authorities was succeeded by parental authority at the close of school each day.

Rutherford said to a Post-Dispatch reporter today: "However strongly I believe in the board's exceeding authority in this rule and cannot enforce it, if the board does not insist on its enforcement, I will require obedience by my daughter. I will stand by any rule of the board that is susceptible of endurance though it is made by improper assumption of authority."

Prof. John Rush Powell, principal of Soldan High School, who was at last night's meeting, was asked to interpret the school authorities' stand. He declined, saying that he had not anticipated such a discussion and had no statement prepared.

A special meeting of the Patrons' Association has been called for Friday night to discuss the matter further.

OKLAHOMA SCORES FIRST IN CONTEST WITH WASHINGTON

Davis Boots Field Goal From 20-Yard Line in First Quarter—4000 See Game.

FRANCIS FIELD, Oct. 23.—Although this morning's rain held down the crowd at today's Washington-Oklahoma game, it put the field in excellent condition. About 4000 persons were in the stands at game time.

The Sooners were the first on the field and went through a light drill. The visitors showed a squad of husky, well-built athletes and seemed to be some heavier than the Pikeway outfit.

This was Oklahoma's first Missouri Valley game since being admitted to the conference last winter. It was also the two schools' first gridiron meeting.

About 25 Norman students amused the stands with their characteristic Mexican border hats. They "rode the rods" to see the contest.

The team's lineup as follows:

LONG, IN TWO SPEECHES, APPEALS FOR LEAGUE

Urges Entry of U. S. and Germany — Cites 27,000,000 War Deaths as Argument.

Breckinridge Long, Democratic nominee for United States Senator, in two speeches last night at Bohemian Gymnasium, Ninth street and Allen avenue, and at Compton Hall, Compton and Park avenues, advocated that the United States enter the League of Nations, that Germany be permitted to enter the league, and asserted that the cost of the war, $186,000,000,000 and 27,000,000 lives, is the best argument for disarmament, which he said could only be obtained under the league.

"Germany has been disarmed to a state which approximates that sought by the League of Nations," Long said.

He stated that Great Britain, Japan and France will not disarm while the United States maintains a powerful navy and army, and that the United States dare not do so until they do. About 80 per cent of the revenue of the nation now goes for armament, he said, pointing out the great good that could be accomplished for river traffic, road building, reclamation of arid and swamp lands and similar national projects, with even a small portion of the money now going into armament.

While 7,450,000 lives were lost in battle during the nearly five years of the war, another 20,000,000 died from disease, accident and the disaster which always follow in the wake of armament.

Long predicted that Germany in all probability will be admitted to the league in about three weeks. He said that the league cannot reach its full effectiveness until Germany and the United States are in, and that Germany cannot be admitted to its own rehabilitation and make a substantial start on paying off her great indebtedness until she can make financial arrangements and assume business relations now impossible with 43 nations in the league and Germany outside.

GEDEON OF BROWNS WILL TESTIFY IN BASEBALL INQUIRY

Official Says St. Louis Baseman Can't Go Before Grand Jury Without Signing Immunity Waiver.

By the Associated Press. CHICAGO, Oct. 28.—Indictments against 13 persons believed to have been implicated in the "throwing" of games in the 1919 world's series by Chicago American League players were returned yesterday by the special Cook County grand jury which has been investigating the baseball scandal for more than a month. Further indictments are expected when the jury convenes against next week officials declare.

Indictments against 10 of the men named yesterday previously had been voted, but were reverted to overcome legal technicalities while the other three—Abe Attell, Hal Chase and William Burns—had only been officially mentioned in connection with the investigation.

Chase and Burns, former major league players, and Attell, once the featherweight boxing champion of the world, have been accused by witnesses of being three of the clique which "framed" the world series and arranged to bribe Chicago White Sox players for sums said to range from $2,000 to $10,000 to try to lose games for the contestants for the world baseball championship.

All of the indictments charge conspiracy to commit an illegal act, a crime for which a penitentiary sentence is given under the laws of Illinois.

Gedeon Is Mentioned.

The jury was also given the name of Joe Gedeon, second baseman for the St. Louis (American League) club. Gedeon was said to have witnessed all of the 1919 world's series games and to have been intimately associated with some of the White Sox players. He is on route from California to testify. It also came out that a trip Ban Johnson made to St. Louis after the announcement of the proposed reorganization of baseball was partly to question Gedeon. Johnson, who testified today, said he talked to Gedeon by telephone.

An official of the State's Attorney's office, while refusing to say what connection the jury believed Gedeon might have with the investigation, said the St. Louis second baseman would not be permitted to testify until he had first signed an immunity waiver. It was said, however, that Gedeon was mentioned by several witnesses before the jury and that the State officials believed he could shed light on testimony given by others. President Johnson said Gedeon had promised him to come to Chicago immediately.

The jury will convene again Tuesday when Ban Johnson has been asked to appear again. Gedeon is expected then.

At Least One Hundred Thousand Bet.

According to testimony presented, "at least several hundred thousand dollars" was bet and won on the world series. Chase was the first man to suggest "throwing" the series, it was said, and called in the others to help him.

Harry Long, a Chicagoan, told the jury he alone placed $27,000 in bets on Cincinnati for "Sport" Sullivan of Boston and testimony has been received concerning many other large bets, it was said.

Besides Chase, Attell and Burns yesterday's indictments covered two alleged gamblers, Sullivan and a man known to the jury only as "Brown," and eight players named by the Chicago American League club against whom true bills previously had been voted. They were Joe Jackson and Oscar Falach, outfielders; Eddie Crotte and Claude Williams, pitchers; "Swede" Risberg, shortstop; "Chick" Gandil, first baseman in 1919, but who was not in the big leagues this year; Fred McMullin, utility infielder, and "Buck" Weaver, third baseman.

WIDOWS OF SLAIN DETECTIVES VOTED $1500 EACH BY CITY

Widow of Auto Policeman, Who Was Accidentally Killed, Will Be Given $1200.

The Board of Police Commissioners yesterday voted a special benefit payment of $1500 each to the widows of Preston B. Anslyn and William A. Moller, city detectives, who were shot and killed last Saturday night by burglar suspects in the $300 block on Juniper street. These payments will be made in addition to $3000 each which the widows will receive from the Police Relief Association. The Police Funeral Association also subscribed $300.

An award of $1200 was made by the board to Mrs. Frank O. Reese, widow of an automobile policeman who was accidentally killed while on duty last week.

The Board of Aldermen at yesterday's session adopted a resolution of sympathy for the families of Anslyn and Moller and pledging co-operation in protecting the lives and interests of policemen. The resolution as originally drawn authorized the payment by the city of $1500 reward for the capture of the murderers.

When it was called to the attention of Alderman Tamme, author of the resolution, that money could not be appropriated by resolution, he said he would make an effort to raise the reward money from private sources.

RESTAURANT COOK ATTACKED ON STREET BY GANG OF MEN

Frank Brinckoff, 30 years old, a cook, on his way to work in a restaurant near Fourth street and Washington avenue, at 6:30 a. m. today, was knocked unconscious by four men, supposedly strikers, while he was waiting for a street car at Park and Pennsylvania avenues. His assailants escaped.

He was found lying on the sidewalk and taken to the city hospital where doctors said he had two scalp wounds. After treatment he departed for work. He told the police he was struck from behind and could not describe his assailants. Witnesses told the police there were four or five men in the crowd which attacked him.

John Alex, baker in a restaurant at 105 North Sixth street, was knocked down when he emerged from a market near Ninth and Market street with both arms filled with bundles yesterday. Five men who struck and kicked him escaped. He was bruised on the jaw and ribs.

LETTERS FROM THE PEOPLE.

Misleading Editorials.
Re the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

The editorials which have appeared in the Globe-Democrat at intervals in the last 18 months have confirmed many sincere Democrats, as well as Republicans, in their opinion that the League of Nations is the greatest document ever conceived by human mind, and that it is now actually functioning in foreign countries where it has been adopted without much opposition.

Their editorial this morning under the caption "Which Way to the League?" is, from a moral standpoint, as wiggly and wobbly as Harding himself, and that is going to be his road to victory.

In one paragraph, they say that "ratification of the treaty with Article 10 or with any reservations to Article 10 that do not wholly release us from its obligations, will be as impossible in the next Senate as it has been in the present one," and then they quote that Article 10 is an "absolutely compelling moral obligation" (we are already under moral obligation) and that is the ground on which the fight is being made, and with Harding they would destroy this moral obligation and would start anew and build up some new kind of an association without binding ourselves under any circumstances with or without Congress, to give anything or do anything morally or otherwise for the protection and benefit we would necessarily get out of some such organization.

It sounds so unChristianlike and ridiculous in the face of the facts to destroy all that has been done towards this great League of Nations that is already functioning, and to tarnish the great honor that America has achieved in the eyes of the world in the late World War, and all other wars for liberty, justice and humanity, since George Washington offered that fervent prayer on the snowy ground at Valley Forge.

Harding says "It's not reservations but rejection that I am contending for," Cox says, and the best mind of the nation are saying, "Give us the league, with reservations that will not annul its usefulness or destroy its compelling moral obligations."

How can the Globe-Democrat reason that a vote for an enemy of the league, like Harding, against a friend of the league, like Cox, is the road to the league? In other words, if you are for the Mount, you should vote against Him and his impelling moral obligations, for that's the way to support Him and His doctrine, according to the philosophy of this strange editorial above referred to, which in my mind is ridiculous and misleading to the people, many of whom want to be right in this election.

Films That Suggest Crime.
Re the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

After reading of the sad deaths of two of our detectives in your paper, will say I think the moving pictures are too suggestive of crime to our young men and boys of today. I attended four picture shows last week and of the pictures I saw four were scenes of robbery and murder. Can't they produce pictures that would be instructive of honorable actions, instead of so much crime?

MRS. N. M.

Hops and Home Brew.
Re the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.

It is interesting to note that in spite of prohibition hop growers throughout the country feel that the prospects for the sale of hops are bright. So bright in business and the price of hops, instead of dipping through the lack of demand by cereal beverage manufacturers, whose output is very small as compared to operations prior to prohibition, remains stationary.

The conclusion is found by checking up the sales of hop merchants and brokers throughout the country to jobbing concerns, who supply small packages of hops for home-brewing purposes. These sales on the present basis amount to a thousand bales a week, or nearly one-third of the entire production of hops in this country, and that with the export demand for hops to England, hop growers feel that our native hop crop can readily be disposed of.

Sales of a thousand bales a week for home brewing purposes signify, on the basis of 150 pounds of hops to the average bale and a pound of hops to each barrel of beer brewed, a production through home brewing of 190,000 barrels of beer per week, or an annual production of 9,888,000 barrels, equivalent to about one-fifth of the amount of beer produced in American breweries before the war.

Enough as it requires costly apparatus and technical skill, refrigerating machinery, etc., to make a light lager beer and keep it in good condition, it is natural to suppose that the home-brew article is much heavier and consequently contains a higher per cent of alcohol. Where commercial beer formerly contained from 4 to 4½ per cent of alcohol, the home brew usually contains about 6 per cent.

Should not these conditions be called the attention of the public as a matter of information on the prohibition question?

W. B. ROBINSON.

NEXT PRESIDENT AND WATERWAYS.

The Post-Dispatch considers development of inland waterways to be not only the most important of our domestic needs in the Mississippi Valley, but one bearing as well an indispensable relation to the whole problem of transportation. It has therefore sought to discover what the effect of electing either Senator Harding or Gov. Cox as President of the United States would be at this time upon the inland waterways movement, since the movement chiefly owes its present advanced status to the friendship of President Wilson. While it is true that Congress determines the policy of the Government in such a matter, it is still quite well known that there is no other such powerful ally in any domestic movement of the first magnitude as the man in the White House. It was primarily Mr. Wilson who revived the Mississippi River, just as it was primarily Mr. Roosevelt who built the Panama Canal.

The Post-Dispatch has been gratified to learn that both the presidential candidates of the major parties are in favor of developing the inland waters. As a matter of fact, coming from Ohio, which owes much of its industrial growth to the Great Lakes, they are both enthusiastically for it. Gov. Cox has made the following statement to the Post-Dispatch:

I have been very deeply interested in the development of waterway transportation, not only for the sake of the river, but also as a matter of genuine worthwhile industrial development. We have gone through a period in which we have been deprived of our natural means of transportation without adequate development of the artificial means.

There seems to have been a general indifference to the status of our country which gives a central internal artery such as the Mississippi River with its tributaries, the Ohio, the Illinois, the Missouri, the Mississippi on the north, the great lakes and the St. Lawrence River. I have given considerable study to the possibilities and the need for developing transportation for our products would be nothing short of criminal government neglect. I wish to be under no misapprehension in regard to Government supervision and assistance in the development of the barge line operation on the Mississippi.

Senator Harding has been twice asked by the Post-Dispatch as to his attitude towards development of the inland waterways—once in his office at Washington soon after his nomination, and again during his recent visit to St. Louis. He said:

My record in public life will show you have to have me in the waterways. I believe in them thoroughly, and have always backed up my faith in them with my vote. I would like to assist in a much larger project relating to the development of our rivers than any we have contemplated—something comparable to the commercial importance of the Panama Canal.

Referring to Messrs. Taft, Root, Wickersham and others who are trying to convince the people that Mr. Harding doesn't mean what he says, Senator Johnson remarked: "If certain gentlemen who put party allegiance above principle want to save their faces, let them do so, so long as they do not save their League."

The way to save the League, the only way, is to vote for pro-League candidates and defeat all anti-League and wobbling candidates.

I am not fully informed as to the barge operation upon the lower Mississippi. I am glad to know that the barge line is now in full operation for Government operation of the line during the war. I am not sure that I am for continued operation by the Government. If the line is successful, it will be a benefit to the lower Mississippi. I only favor continuing but also enlarging it. Whether that can be done better under Government management by private ownership, I am not prepared to say.

The status of the barge line is at this time such that only the Government operation is practicable. That will continue to be the case until terminals are secured and a joint rate structure between the barges and the railroads is built up for the protection of subsequent private investment in waterway transportation. Despite the lamentable condition of transportation in the country now, there would not be a pound of freight moving between St. Louis and every state at New Orleans except for the Government operation. The Republican platform upon which Senator Harding is running is against Government ownership of railroads, and had waterways been a factor at the time it would have been against Government operations on inland waters. That is the policy of the element now in control of the Republican party. It is what Senator Harding has in mind when he expresses doubt about the wisdom of continuing a Government operation upon the lower Mississippi. The valley may look for trouble to a continuance of the Government operation if the Republican party wins the election. Notwithstanding the obvious position of Congress to develop the inland waters, we can still count upon powerful influences opposed to the Government operation if Senator Harding goes into the White House. Less than a year ago these same influences sought to end the Federal operation on the Erie Canal and have the Government equipment pass to private ownership. The effort failed because of the unfriendly attitude of Washington. While Senator Harding is personally for the rivers and will no doubt do whatever he can for them, the valley must not forget that the influences back of him are inimical to the thing most needful now and for some time to come—the Government operation.

The Government investment in the barge line is by this time some $15,000,000 upon the Mississippi and Warrior rivers. The first of the powerful towboats which are to supplant the old and immobile stern-wheelers on the river has just passed a successful test in the Ohio and is waiting high water to go down to Cairo. It would be a disaster to the valley if at a time when the Mississippi is upon the verge of coming back a reactionary influence like that behind Senator Harding should come into control of the Government and embarrass the present Federal policy. The sensible thing for the valley to do would be to support the friends of the rivers, who are unhampered by Wall street.

I admire a man who is an American before he is a partisan," said Mr. Harding at Kansas City, in complimentary reference to Senator Reed. But there has been no mention of any congratulations from Mr. Harding to Herbert Parsons in the subsidized press.

HARDING'S FEEBLEST ARGUMENT.

Perhaps the feeblest argument that Senator Harding has put out against the election of Gov. Cox—the superlative among feeble arguments—is that Gov. Cox cannot put the League through because the Senate will be against the League. Mr. Taft reiterates this mushy argument.

In other words, don't elect the man who is for the League, because the Senate might obstruct, but elect the man who is against the League.

This is assuming that the Senate, a large majority of whose present members are for the League, will ignore the mandate of the people. But what guarantee is there that the Senate will remain as it is? If Gov. Cox is elected, there will be a complete change in the Senate. There is a bright prospect of several changes from anti-League to pro-League Senators. At least Senator Newberry may be in the penitentiary instead of the Senate.

What folly it would be to elect the candidate whose election would insure the defeat of the treaty, instead of electing the candidate whose election would insure the resubmission of the League to the Senate, with a popular vote in favor of its ratification back of him.

The people will take care of the Senate.

For a candidate who is pledged to destroy the League to urge the friends of the League not to vote for the candidate who is pledged to save the League is a bit of political vaudeville which is unworthy even of Senator Harding.

The voters know now where Harding stands. Quoting his denunciations of the League, Senator Johnson said in New York: "We so-called irreconcilables in the Senate have never said anything more radical than has Harding. He has gone the limit."

Referring to Messrs. Taft, Root, Wickersham and others who are trying to convince the people that Mr. Harding doesn't mean what he says, Senator Johnson remarked: "If certain gentlemen who put party allegiance above principle want to save their faces, let them do so, so long as they do not save their League."

The way to save the League, the only way, is to vote for pro-League candidates and defeat all anti-League and wobbling candidates.

"It is the peculiar glory of the Republican party," said ex-Senator Beveridge, "that it is the only political organization in American history that, as a party out of power, sustained the Government as wholeheartedly and effectively as the party in power." This will be news to the Democrats who, in 1898, volunteered for service in the war with Spain. That was an exhibition of loyalty to the Republican President, William McKinley, which Albert J. Beveridge omitted to render, although of fighting age.

"It is not fully informed as to the barge operation upon the lower Mississippi. I am glad to know that the barge line is now in full operation for Government operation of the line during the war. JUST A MINUTE

SPEECH BY MR. CHRISTENSEN.

Fellow Skinned:

(Applause) I always take pleasure in addressing an audience of such vicious intelligence. (Laughter.) Something must be done. J. Ogden Armour made twenty-one million dollars last year. I don't know how he made it, but I read in the Nation that he made it. That can't be borne by us. You are the backbone of the country. You are trampled by the bay windows of the country. (Applause.)

Now let me tell you something about Economics. Of course, I don't know much about Economics, but this speech ought to contain some reference to Economics. Now, on this side of the fence are the Wall Street gamblers. On the other side are the farmers and the laborers.

They get together, why, then, well, it's a little too complicated to work out this evening; but you know what I mean. Now, the daily press is subsidized. You know that the Chicago Tribune is controlled by English money. At least, I've heard that it is. So are our schoolbooks. They teach property rights. That's all wrong. Why should a man who quits at 2 o'clock in the afternoon to play golf own the wealth of this country? You people ought to own the wealth of the country. (Applause.) If I'm elected President they will lack the courage to make a start. Jamie doesn't see any more disasters ahead of the League of Nations. He is no certain of the wisdom of the Constitution. He is no certain of the rightness of the Constitution. (Applause.)

Now let me tell you something about the Constitution. The Socialists are too far ahead; they are too idealistic. And yet, they didn't put this thing over, so what's the use of joining them? Now, Wall street, I say, is robbing. (Voice: Hey, brother, how about prohibition?)—is robbing the FOURTH INSTALLMENT.

THE next day Belden applied for and was granted 'six months' sick leave, and two weeks later he sailed for France. He had been told of a doctor in Paris, a world famous specialist in diseases of the nerves; he would go to him and tell him his story from start to finish.

He did so, and the physician, who had an excellent command of English, listened to him with interest and sympathy.

"But naturally you understand what it is," he exclaimed when the young man had finished.

"Of course. Nerve," replied Belden tersely.

"Exactly. Hold fast to that and we can keep these runaway horses of yours—how do you say it?—in the middle of the road, and avoid a smash!"

He monologued long and earnestly, and Belden, by listening with close attention, succeeded in grasping about half of what he said. But the concluding words were very clear:

"It rests wholly with you, my friend," the specialist declared. "It is for you to decide whether you will conquer or let it drive you mad."

Belden smiled grimly. He knew that very well.

"And, remember, the longer it lasts the harder it will be to overcome."

Belden's smile faded. He knew that, too.

"What's the prescription?" he demanded, somberly.

"Courage—and time—and again courage."

"Time hasn't helped so far," muttered the patient. "I've grown worse from the start."

The physician nodded.

"Because you remained in the place where the thing happened. That was a mistake. You should have left it at once."

"But The Thing has followed me—I mean, I have the same symptoms here."

"They will pass—if you do not fear them."

The doctor gave him the last words very slowly and eye to eye. Belden set his teeth and straightened his shoulders. "I'll do my best," he said, quietly.

"Good. You shall come with me to my place in the country, where I go for the summer. I take with me a few patients only, and my family. We will give you what you need—an absolute change of environment, a new life."

Belden liked his doctor, and when he reached the country place in Touraine he liked that, too. He liked the charm and novelty of French domestic and social life, and the beauty of the valley of the Loire. Most of all, he liked the daughter of the specialist—a charming girl of 18, just graduated from a convent in Tours, and with a singing voice whose beauty made his heart turn over.

At first he treated her as if she were the younger sister he had always longed for but never had. Then, almost unconsciously, he developed a deeper interest in her, and he ended by falling in love with the thoroughness and abandon which characterized all he did. In his life he had had a few tumultuous affairs, which, looked back upon now in the blaze of this wonderful revelation, he diagnosed scornfully as "puppy loves."

This experience was altogether different, and he began his wooing with the impetuosity and

DENMARK'S GIRL SCOUT HEAD, COMMENDS WALKING AROUND WORLD FOR HEALTH

OUR bodies are very wonderful. It is our own fault if they are not strong. I was a sickly child, very frail. I wished to become strong because I am ambitious to do a great deal of work for the children of my country. It is very easy to build up bodily strength if one uses sense and system."

Ertrid Ott, a champion walker and head of the Girl Scouts of Denmark, who recently left her home in Helsholm and stepped off in New York on the first lap of her trip around the world, was telling how she trained herself to 40 miles a week.

"What's the prescription?" he demanded, somberly.

In his life he had had a few tumultuous affairs, which, looked back upon now in the blaze of this wonderful revelation, he diagnosed scornfully as "puppy loves."

This experience was altogether different, and he began his wooing with the impetuosity and say, "How very sad!" But then again, we could laugh and say, "How very jolly!" Rain is very delightful when you are out walking in it. So much depends on the way we look at life. I do not think one can be happy unless one is doing satisfactory work, and I do not think one can do one's best work unless the body is strong. Happiness means that we must work and think and suffer and enjoy. In me there is the capacity for work and for happiness. I must keep the machinery of body and mind in such good order that I can always look forward to a walk next week than I am doing this week."

"I think it is good to be a Girl Scout because in all our activities there is an object and an ideal. We are working toward something definite. And that is how we grow. One time I walked 20 miles and they gave me a medal and I was surprised.

That is a very little walk. In Denmark, when we go on our marches, we go 16 miles before we stop to rest. If any of the girls grow tired we sing and laugh and tell amusing stories and that builds up our spirits."

FROM my own experience and that of other girls I have watched, I have become convinced that the physical strength is influenced by our mental attitude. That is why in all my writing and in my talks to younger girls I keep up a running stream of light-hearted good humor. It is very important. If it rains we could sigh and magnetism that had made him one of the best officers in the American army. Daily he walked or drove for hours with Victoire, properly chaperoned by her mother or by the maiden aunt who was an almost speechless appendage of the household; and each evening Victoire sang for him, played to him and improved his French until she was banished to her room at 10 o'clock.

In the fullest sense of the words, Belden was living a new life, and as the weeks passed he made a discovery. The Thing was disappearing!

It no longer followed him upstairs. Of a week or 10 days at a time he did not hear it in his room, and when he did it seemed to move about feebly, like a Thing whose vitality was gone.

He ceased to look for it, or expect it; he almost ceased to think of it, for his mind was full of Victoire. At night he thought of her until he fell asleep.

When, three months later, he was pronounced cured, he promptly asked Dr. Seguad for his daughter's hand. The physician hesitated.

"I will be frank with you, my friend," he then said quietly. "Personally, I like you. Your family and your profession are excellent. That you have an independent income and can support your wife in comfort is most satisfactory. But, candidly, I would ask a better nervous system in the husband of my daughter."

Belden stared at him uncomprehendingly, as one who listened to babbles in a strange tongue.

"But, good heavens," he cried, "I'm as right as rain, now. I never had a nerve in my life till three months ago, and I never expect to have one again. Why, I've almost forgotten already that I ever had any."

Dr. Seguad studied him.

"The fear of The Thing is no longer with you,

Miss Ott has won all the medals and citations that can be won by a Girl Scout. One sleeve of her Copenhagen blue blouse is covered with them. There are 17 of these decorations, and she has a Red Cross badge for a year's hospital service and some other minor distinctions.

In addition to being the champion walker, she has won recognition as the youngest author of her country. She published her first book when she was 16. She is now drawing royalties from four best-sellers. For two years she has been a journalist on Copenhagen papers. She told me how very glad she was that she had studied philosophy and science in college when she was a girl, because these studies have opened doors that made it easier for her to understand people and conditions she had to write about.

SHE considers American girls of her own age adorable children, but she would not trade places with them. She has found few of them who have begun to think. This immaturity she blames partly on the theater.

"I wish to demonstrate that a Girl Scout can travel anywhere in the world alone," she said. "I travel always in uniform because my uniform is my guardian. I have no traveling hat. I shall not need any. My hair is the natural covering for my head and a hat would be a bother."

Miss Ott was asked what is her ambition in life now that she has her body and her mind trained to do her bidding.

"To publish a daily newspaper for children," she said. "I expect to begin next year. It will tell all the news of the day in language a child can understand and enjoy. And it will not have any unwholesome stories about crime or anything that will poison a child's mind. It will have an open forum for the children of my country. I think the children have been kept silenced too long. They have longings and secrets they cannot tell to their own parents because their parents would laugh and that would hurt. They shall tell them to me and to each other. I think we will have a wonderful paper."

"I shall devote a lot of space to sports and to book reviews, and we shall talk only of sports and books in which children are interested. They have been neglected too long."

"I have gone to many moving picture shows and to plays since I have been in America, but I do not find an idea in the plays or the pictures," she replied. "In Denmark we like to read and to talk and to play sports that are like the poems and that feed our minds and make us think. I find the comedies in New York very sad, indeed. They do not make me laugh, and I wish to be amused. In Denmark I have seen many wonderful moving pictures by American companies of our own girls. Christen Andersen fairy tales. I hope to see many such beautiful things here, but the things I see are only silly."

Miss Ott will visit the principal cities between New York and California. She will visit the Philippines, Japan, China, India, countries in Australia and Africa. Then she will go back to Copenhagen in a year studying philosophy. She is to study the geography and psychology of her world trip, and then she will settle down to a life of indoor journalism and outdoor scouting.
